The gentle feel of Supima® cotton

Characterized by its ultra-long fibers, Supima® cotton accounts for less than 1% of all the world’s cotton. UNIQLO uses this variety to produce clothing starting with the fabric’s yarns. The secret to the fabric’s gentle feel is the yarn, which has long fibers and produces little fuzz. A soft texture and beautiful coloration are features of Supima® cotton.

UT items and special collections are coming out in spring and summer. Also take a look at what UNIQLO is doing to promote sustainability.

Reduced use of disposable plastic

UNIQLO has begun selling DryEx polo shirts made partially with recycled polyester produced from collected plastic bottles. The goal is to encourage recycling of plastic bottles and reductions in carbon dioxide emissions.

To meet our target of reducing our use of disposable plastic by 85% by the end of 2020, UNIQLO is reviewing each one of our product packages so we can reduce the amount of plastic and paper we use and shift to environmentally-friendly materials.

Plenty of current pop culture is coming to new UT items again this spring!

UT T-shirt designs feature current pop culture from art, music, film, comics, animation and more. In 2020, we’ve got another huge amount of collaborations coming, offering over 1,000 patterns.

A design team led by artistic director Christophe Lemaire collaborated with an R&D center in Paris to produce the fine wardrobes in this collection. Every year marks a new step forward as they seek to produce the ultimate daily attire that is more functional and sophisticated for each season.

Our special collaboration continues with a leading London-based fashion brand JW ANDERSON in the 20SS season. A designer, Jonathan Anderson introduces long-awaited kids line for the first time.
